

QUESTIONS TO THE BREWERS.

A Temperance Society Seeking to Learn If New York Beer Is Pure.

The Business Men's Society for the Encouragement of Moderation, in order to inform itself concerning the wholesomeness of beer as a beverage, has forwarded to all the beer brewers in New York City and the neighborhood the following questions, to which it asks answers:

1. Do you use, in the manufacture of your beer, corn (maized or raw), glucose, grape sugar, potato starch, corn starch, rice, molasses, or any other substance, as a beverage, or food, added to all the beer brewed by you?

2. If so, what substitutes do you use and in what proportion?

3. Are you willing to submit your beer to a chemical analysis, with a view to determine its purity?

4. Will you consent to permit an authorized officer of this society to inspect the "brewing house" of your firm at any time?

5. Do you, in the manufacture of your beer, employ "extract" or "essence" of hops or any other substance for flavoring?

6. How many barrels of beer do you make last year, and how many barrels of beer do you sell, and what is your profit upon their production?

7. At what time in the year do you make your stock of beer?

8. How much beer do you sell six months old? How much have you on hand that four months old?

9. What are dry-up self-consumers to customers?

10. Do you sell beer, new and old?

11. In what proportions, and what average age do you aim to sell beer?

12. What are the proportions of barley malt and hops used in the making of a barrel of your beer as usually furnished by you?

13. Are you willing to make oath that your answers to the above questions are true?

Connecticut Peaches in the Market.

KILLINGLY, Conn., Aug. 6.—Mr. Vernon Simmons of this town has been bringing into market this week his crop of native peaches. From seven hundred peach trees he expects to take over two hundred bushels. They are of different varieties, but are large, juicy, and delicious and taste to the old inhabitants like the peaches of yesteryear. The entire crop has been received by Mr. C. H. Smith & Co., who will deal with the prospect that New England peaches are once more to be raised and sold in the markets. The peaches of years ago were not equal to those of today, but are equaled. Salmon and peaches of native growth disappeared from the markets about the time of the Civil War, but have returned to the State last year than the year before, and there will probably be more this year than ever. The peach tree has begun again to bear in New England, especially in this state, many farmers have turned their attention to the culture of fruit, and some fine peach orchards are now to be seen.

Vessels Going Ashore in a Fog.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The dense fog prevailing in this vicinity has again great difficulties in the way of vessels in getting into port at this Island. The steamer left this morning and sank immediately. The majority of the vessels are on Black Rock and the South West point. In the harbor to-day the fog is very dense. The lumber-laden schooner E. Smith, from the South, was unable to get into port, so Newton's Rock yesterday afternoon, came off, and has now run aground. The wreckers are at work on the schooner Caroline, which is stuck between the breakwater and the pier. A tug boat is sent to the assistance of the schooner. Action is taken in the west side of Manhattan Island, with some fire-shots.

A Farmer Killing His Neighbor.

TROY, Aug. 6.—George Harrington, aged 67 years, died at Stephenton yesterday from injuries inflicted by Michael Ward, a neighbor. Ward's cattle broke into Harrington's field on Thursday, and caused an attack of fits, which resulted in his death. Harrington, breaking his ribs and causing other injuries, Ward submitted himself to the authorities, and is now in the Troy jail. He will be indicted.

West Troy's Reservoir Polluted.

TROY, Aug. 6.—The people of West Troy are greatly excited over the pollution of the reservoir of the village water works. Cattle are allowed to wallow in the reservoir, and the water is so impure that after a short time it becomes undrinkable. The water is undrinkable. The crowd is unbearable. Dr. H. L. Wade publishes a card protecting a tapeworm epidemic.

Wanted—Females.

A. OUR REDUCTIONS have been made with reference to original cost, or cost of export of our goods, and we are now able to compete with fall and winter goods. We deem it useless to publish an extract from the public in general that, in the case of advertisements at home, figures do not meet the facts. We have now reduced our prices to the lowest point, and will have been the means of attracting so many purchasers to our large establishment.
